Book of the week: Touchdown Kid by John Green

Cory and his best friend, Liam, have always loved football. Even though they live in a rough neighborhood where opportunities are rare, their passion for the game has carried them through. So, Cory could not be happier when he found out that Liam was offered a scholarship to HBS, an elite private school known for its football program. But then a tragic injury sidelines Liam, and the HBS coach gives Cory an amazing opportunity. Accepting it however may mean having to fit in with teammates who only see him as the "scholarship kid". Cory knows that he can fight hard and build a future that looks very different from his past. But will he be able to maintain his touchdown id status, or will it all just fall apart just short of the end zone.
